the stuff; on this account, therefore, the glue is mixed with the decoction, in order to precipitate the tannin.

The decoction thus prepared may be used for dyeing spun or woven cotton without any further preparation. The shades of colour may be varied at pleasure. When the dye is completed the cotton is put into a bath of nitric acid and water, to give the colour more brilliancy and solidity. This colour is so fine and solid, and the process so simple, that it may be prepared without the assistance of dyers.

Preparation of a fire-proof and water-proof Cement.

To half a pint of milk put an equal quantity of vinegar, in order to curdle it; then separate the curd from the whey, and mix the whey with the whites of four or five eggs, beating the whole well together. When it is well mixed add a little quicklime through a sieve, until it has acquired the consistence of a thick paste.

With this cement broken vessels and cracks of all kinds may be mended. It dries quickly, and resists the action of fire and water.
